

ARNOLD TELLS OF "TITANIA."

The Man She Claimed as Her Common-Law Husband Makes a Statement.
Homer L. Arnold, the Drunkard writes on "Tatiana," the Central Park reservoir swimmer, was proclaimed as her common-law husband a year after her death, made a statement yesterday detailing his relations with the woman. In it he said:

"Tatiana," was, I think, twenty-seven years old when I first saw her, on the evening of December 31, 1895, in a "furnished room" flat near Riverside street, Chicago. The house was entirely furnished. She told me many things, often concerning her family. I believe, however, that she was a Russian; that her father had been a merchant in Russia, and that her mother had published several volumes of poems. Her father was tall and fair; her mother short and dark, and Tatiana had inherited her father's physique and her mother's fair complexion, and her mother's dark hair and taste for literature. She was very intelligent, and had a very good education, always having a clear red and white complexion, always attracted attention on the street and made new acquaintances readily.

"She was without passion, and repented as she was in that direction, especially from rec-acquaintance. A platonic association of friendship and love between us almost from the instant of our meeting. I was very much attracted for her, and she for me. On Feb. 2, "Titania" wished to come with me to the opera. The matter was talked over between us for several days. I was extremely fond of her, but saw nothing for her but ruin in taking her with me. Our relations had been purely platonic since the first day. I could not take her with me, and she would kill herself. "We finally left Chicago together. Upon reaching New York, I think about March 10, consequently, he took the Columbia newspaper and the Washington Post and the Washington Evening Star, and she wanted forgiveness for her temptations for the things she had done to annoy me. I felt the same pity for her I have always felt, and we were parted with kind feelings.

On April 26, I wrote letters to me on Monday, April 29, announcing her suicide that day. I enclosed containing about the same clippings as before, and quotations which were found on her body after the death. I did not receive these letters for several days, as she had said to me: "As she said to me, I could do nothing but wait and see if she intended suicide. It is my belief now that she drowned herself on the night of April 26."

I do not wish to be understood as placing the tragic blame on "Titania" in any way. I understood all the limitations of her character and it was an act of the greatest folly on her to take her with me when I left Chicago," she said. "I was the only opinion of the world. She had a violent temper, and she also had an extremely kind heart. I was very sympathetic so far as she was concerned."

DIAMOND BUYER IN THE TOMB

Recorder Goff Won't Charge the Jury in Robinson's Case Until Monday.

Joseph Robinson, the diamond dealer who has been charged with the murder of receiving the diamonds Stela stole from his cousin, Jule Hyman, was committed to the Tomb by Recorder Goff at the close of the case in the General Sessions last night. The Recorder said he would charge the jury on Monday. Robinson has been in the Tombs since he was arrested last Tuesday. Lawyer Levy introduced evidence for the purpose of trying to prove that Jule Hyman was not the person who had been one of the witnesses called was Edward N. McIlverney. "What is your business?" asked Mr. Levy. "I am Robinson's detective," answered the witness. "I am employed at Simpson's on the Bowery."

Not One of Valentine's Victims.

Miss Polansky writes to THE SUN asking to have corrected the published statement that she had been swindled out of $175 under a promise of marriage by Ignatz Valentine, who formerly kept a boarding house at 655 Lexington avenue. She denies that she had promised to marry him.

In spite of all our well-known care to keep our stock complete, to the very end of the season, there are certain things at the beginning not here at the end.

Best suits, $18 to $28; good ones as low as $12; for bicycling as low as $8.

LOST HIS WIFE AND WENT TO JAIL.
An Aged Pair, Turned Adrift, Were Separated
in Wednesday's Storm.

Seventy-two-year-old Michael Harrigan was committed to jail for twenty-nine days by Justice Leeson in the Even Street Police Court, Williamsburg, on the charge of vagrancy yesterday.

On Tuesday night Harrigan and his wife were living with their daughter, Mrs. McGarran, at Kent and Franklin streets. Mrs. McGarran has six children, and three weeks ago her husband, it is said, deserted her. She found the burden of her parents too much, and advised them to go among their friends for aid. When they refused, she left them and went to her mother. They became separated, and at midnight on Wednesday Harrigan entered the Greenpoint police station and was committed to the cells.

"We have never been separated before," Harrigan said, "and I told her so that we were not separated in death."

His wife's explanation here and an unseasonable effort was made to find his wife. When Harrigan was arraigned in court he was told that his wife had been committed to the institution already overcrowded, and the jail was the only place to which the old man could be sent. He was then taken to the cells and was heard by the police of Mrs. Harrigan.

AGROUND NEAR NEW LONDON.

Two Schooners Meet with Accidents and One of Them Filled Of The Rocks.

NEW LONDON, Conn., May 13.—Vrecker Scott today sent his tug Alert and a lighter over to the two-masted schooner Winnie Lowry, which was stranded by Long Island Light on Wednesday night. The schooner was near 400 tons of coal consigned to Portsmouth, N. H., and it was the intention of the wreckers to take off the cargo to-day and attempt to haul the vessel off, but it was postponed until to-morrow, as the Lowry was found to be resting easy and the Alert was unable to get within 100 feet of the fog bell on the island.

At 10 o'clock this morning the tug B. Hubbard, Capt. Alexander McHaffey, loaded with lumber consigned to the Columbia Steam Saw Mill at New London, was attempting to pass a narrow channel to the wharf this morning by the tug Dr. Briggs, ran upon McLean's ledge, and the schooner was hoisted up by the cable and she lay upon the rocks until 6 o'clock to-night, when the Briggs, assisted by the tug Welchton, receded in hauling her safely out of the stream.

THE NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, New York.
May 13, 1897.—The Executive Committee of the New York Life Insurance Company desire to express their sorrow and their sense of loss in the death of the Hon. Christopher C. Baldwin, who died at Newport, R. I., on May 12, 1897. Mr. Baldwin was elected a member of the Board of Trustees of this Company in 1884, and since 1892 has been a member of the Finance Committee. He was also the Chairman of the Building Committee in charge of the construction of the new Home Office of the Company. His wide experience as merchant, railroad manager, and in official positions under both State and national governments had given him a rare knowledge of men, of business methods, and of material values. He was thorough in his investigation of questions submitted for his consideration, conscientious in his decisions, and courageous in the expression of his opinions. He was withal an agreeable and genial personality, a man who won the affections and the confidence of his associates, and who will be mourned both as a co-laborer and as a friend.
